STILL SEIZED AT COLMA BY FED. OFFICERS

Prohibition Agents Confiscate
Materials; Arrest Two
Ranchers

A 350-gallon still was seized by federal prohibition officers on a Colma ranch Tuesday night together with a large quantity of material for the manufacture of liquor. Two men said to have been in charge of the still were arrested by the federal officers.

The raid was made on the Sapone ranch at Colma. Here the officers arrested Henrico Lido, Colma rancher, and Megliante Mentore, Daly City rancher. With the still the officers confiscated 150 gallons of whiskey, 81 sacks of sugar, 25 pounds of yeast, and 9200 gallons of mash. The ranch had been under suspicion by the federal agents for some time, and the raid Tuesday night was the culmination of long investigation.

This is the third big still to be discovered by prohibition agents during the past two weeks. One was wrecked by an explosion in Beresford, and shortly afterward another large one was discovered in operation in Beresford.

Retail Service School Slated

Better Business Institute Will Open Coaching Program
Here on Sept. 30.

"Better and more business" by more and better personal service to the customer is the keynote of the Better Business Institute coaching program to be held in Redwood City for one week starting September 30.

The program, to be conducted here under the extension division of the Arnold Sales Training Institute of Los Angeles, is in line with the present constructive business normalizing activities. A survey and report on what the housewife of Redwood City thinks of her local merchants and sales people is a feature of the Arnold work.

To work with and not for the business men of the community is the purpose of Perry B. Arnold, president of the organization, who will personally conduct the coaching course, assisted by Mrs. Fay Meyer Arnold, nationally known retail merchandizing authority.

The work has the endorsement of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and other leading business men's organizations in California and adjoining states. F. Brooks and K. E. Van Scoy, field representatives, are here organizing the class. A successful class was conducted here by this institute about three years ago.

San Carlos Man Kills Self As Arrest is Tried

Harry Paul Weatherly, 23, of San Carlos, found the burdens of life too much for him late Wednesday, and killed himself while police were hammering on the door behind which he stood with a gun, seeking his arrest. Weatherly was to have been arrested on charges of failure to support his wife and young child. Weatherly had been out of work for some time, and had been living for the past few days with his uncle, Hilary Forde, of Daly City.

It was at the Forde home that police were seeking his arrest on the non-support charge. Weatherly locked himself in the bath room, and when the police sought to enter shot himself. He was removed to St. Luke's hospital, but was dead upon his arrival there.

EXAMINATION ON CONSTITUTION TO BE GIVEN NOV. 22

The San Mateo County Board of Education will conduct an examination on the Constitution Saturday, November 22, 1930, at 9:30 a. m. in the Central school, Redwood City. All teachers seeking certification who must meet this requirement are eligible to receive this examination.

Anderson's Trial Again Postponed

Autopsy Surgeon's Absence
Causes Date To Be Set
For Oct. 24

The trial of Anton Anderson, Crockett fisherman, for the murder of Jack Burke, former San Mateo county game warden, and Allen Curry, game warden of San Francisco, will be held on October 24. Anderson was to have faced the court for the killing on Wednesday, but the hearing was postponed due to the fact that Dr. Walter Berger, autopsy surgeon, is at present in the east. As the surgeon is considered one of the most important witnesses by the prosecution, it was decided to postpone the date for trial until he could return.

The hearing will be held in Burlingame in the court of Justice of the Peace Percy Jackson. Anderson's trial will be unique in one respect. He will be the only witness to the killing. The two men were killed in a fight aboard Anderson's boat a short distance off shore from Burlingame on April 30.

According to Anderson's story the two men appeared along side of his boat in a smaller craft and boarded his fishing boat. They charged, he claims, that he was fishing in illegal waters, although he had been told by the fish and game commission that he could fish the bay where he was working. The two men, he claims, tried to confiscate a new net for which he had just paid $600, and then ordered him to put into shore at South San Francisco. Anderson says he refused to do this and said that he was going to Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco.

At this point, Anderson claims, the two began shooting at him, striking him in the arm and in the chest. He reached into the cabin of his boat and seized his gun and killed the two assailants.

With the bodies of the two men Anderson put into San Francisco, where he was taken in a serious condition from the gun wounds to the St. Francis hospital.

Anderson was in the hospital for several months. It was thought at first that his wounds would prove fatal, as he had been shot several times and was weak from loss of blood. His powerful constitution, however, made it possible for him to rally, and he was finally able to leave the hospital. Since leaving the hospital he has been at liberty on $10,000 bail.

Falcons Sunday Y. M. I. To Meet

The local Y. M. I. will open its 1930 football season next Sunday when it takes on the Falcon Athletic Club of San Francisco.

Al Terremore, former star of the University of Santa Clara is coaching the Redwood Terrors and has had his men out evenings all this week putting them through different plays. Playing on the Y. M. I. are such favorites as Danny Foley, Al Corfiori, Tom Shine, Jack Gibson, Carl Mettler, "Clam" O'Brien, Sid Hinman, Arnie Jansing, Joe Romero, "Rik" Guinasso and Harry Henriouille. Terremore himself will hold down the full back position for the Y. M. I.

The games will be played on Genoa field on lower Broadway, grandstands having been erected to take care of the big crowd expected at the opening game, which will start at 2:30.

Woman Held for Having Liquor

Constable P. B. Gril and Deputy Sheriff Tom Maloney and C. A. Callaghan raided the establishment conducted on the Alameda de las Pulgas by Mrs. May Denike yesterday and seized a quantity of illicit liquor. Mrs. Denike and a number of men and women who were found at her place were arrested and brought to the county jail here, where all except the owner of the place were released.

Mrs. Denike was booked on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe and asked for time to plea, which was granted. The time for entering a plea was set for next Thursday at 2 o'clock.

Sheriff Elected Vice-President Of Association

Chief of Police Harper of Burlingame Also Made
Vice-President

Sheriff James J. McGrath of this county was elected third vice-president of the California Police Officers Association which held a three day convention in Long Beach this week. Chief of Police John J. Harlingame of Burlingame, was elected second vice-president of the organization.

Burglar Hits Three Burlingame Houses

A midnight prowler with more than ordinary amount of nerve entered three Burlingame homes Tuesday night, and while the owners slept, went through the trouser pockets of the gentlemen, and emptied purses of the ladies. In one place he is reported to have sat on the foot of the bed while he broke open a jewel case belonging to the lady who was sleeping in the bed.

The burglar entered the homes through windows, and apparently contented himself with what he could find in clothing and on the dressers in the bedrooms as no other part of the houses appeared to have been visited.

Those called on by the daring thief were H. H. Anderson, 1347 Montana avenue; S. L. Webster, 1351 Montana avenue; and H. R. Selins, 2509 Hillside Drive. The burglar is reported to have secured about $26 for his night's work.

Janitor Fined For Disturbance

J. B. Johnson, colored janitor and bootblack, was fined $25 in the court of Judge Edward I. McAuliffe yesterday on a charge of disturbing the peace. Johnson was arrested on September 17th by Officer Thorpe after having forcibly ejected another man from his place of business. Johnson was given the alternative of a $25 fine or a 5-day jail sentence. He paid the fine.

P. G. & E. to Build Service Structure

The Pacific Gas & Electric Company secured a permit this week from City Building Inspector I. C. Drathman for the construction of its new service building on Rogers and Arguello streets. According to Walter T. Kellogg, local manager of the company, work will be started within the next two weeks. The group of buildings, which will replace the present plant on Marshall street, will include a warehouse, garage, service department, superintendent's office, etc., and will be constructed of hollow tile and mill work. The estimated cost of the project is $35,000.

The Sudden Lumber Co. of this city also secured a permit from Inspector Drathman for the construction of a one-story hollow tile office building and storeroom on its recently acquired site at 1601 El Camino Real. The company has 30,000 square feet of space on the new site, to which it will move its lumber yards now located on El Camino Real, opposite the Sequoia high school campus. The latter property was recently sold.

The estimated cost of the new office buildings and storeroom is $10,000.

Burlingame Man Held On Charge of Bigamy

Wallace L. Estes, of Burlingame, is being held by San Francisco police on a charge of bigamy. Estes, it is charged, is married to a second wife, while still married to Mrs. Estes, whom he married in Virginia in 1927. Charges of bigamy were preferred by the first Mrs. Estes, who charges that she was deserted by Estes. She accidentally met her husband with his second wife on the street in San Francisco, and asked for his arrest. Estes is an oil salesman of Burlingame.

Store Windows of Merchants Make Business Streets Attractive for Program Crowd

ENTERTAINMENT ENJOYED

City's Merchants Join in Presenting Interesting Evening of Entertainment, and in Displaying Latest
Fall Styles

The annual style show and fall opening arranged by the Retailers, Redwood City's organization of retail merchants, Wednesday evening, proved to be one of the most successful affairs yet to be attempted by the progressive organization, and attracted thousands of persons to the business district of Redwood City to enjoy the program and to see the late showings of fall wear.

The program was presented on a large platform which had been erected on Webster street between Broadway and Marshall streets, and was listened to by a crowd which filled the street to capacity and occupied the steps of the court house.

The most important feature of the program was the showing of the latest fall styles for men and women. These styles were shown by living models, being worn by Mrs. Violet Clemens, Miss Thelma Bowen, Miss Elsie Swanson, Miss Constance Sorenson, Miss Madeline Siver, Miss Marion Haugman, Leo Mornin and Glenn McCarthy.

The first order of the evening was the unveiling of the windows of the Redwood City merchants. Special windows had been prepared for the occasion and the windows of the stores presented a beautiful appearance as a result of the care which had been bestowed upon this phase of the evening by the various merchants.

The evening's entertainment was started by the high school band under the direction of Frank Headley, musical instructor of the high school. The band marched from the intersection of Broadway and the highway to the scene of the entertainment. The program was officially opened by a short speech by Daniel R. Stafford, mayor of Redwood City. The welcoming address to the people of Redwood City was made by James Hearn, president and of the Retailers, who introduced Al Davies, who acted as master of ceremonies.

REALTY CHIEF ADDRESSES REALTORS ON LOWER TAXES

The California Realtors, through the local boards, and in a nationwide tie-up through the National Association, are co-operating with the tax levying bodies in an effort to lighten the tax burden on real property owners according to Glenn D. Willaman of Los Angeles, state secretary of the California Real Estate Association, who spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Redwood City Real Estate District board at the Hotel Sequoia yesterday. Guests at the luncheon included realtors from Palo Alto, San Francisco, Burlingame and San Mateo, as well as city and county officials and representatives of the local chamber of commerce and service clubs.

Mr. Willaman was welcomed on his visit to Redwood City by Mayor Daniel R. Stafford, who spoke briefly on civic development in Redwood City during the past year.

D. W. Watson, chairman of the property owners division of the State Real Estate Board, preceded the main speaker and told of the work being done by his organization in securing the co-operation of the property owners of California in the campaign to reduce the burdens of taxation.

D. St. George of Belmont, president of the Redwood City district board, acted as chairman of the meeting.

In his talk yesterday Mr. Willaman said in part as follows:

"We are now engaged in a state and nation-wide campaign to enlist property owners in the move for tax relief. Every state has overburdened its real estate with taxes, and more taxpayers must be brought into the picture. Our real estate boards, as well as those throughout the nation, are at work enrolling property owner members to get behind this effort."

"The California Real Estate Association, the California Association of Building Owners and Managers, and the California Land Title Association, through a joint tax committee, have been making an intensive study of the whole state tax situation since September, 1928.

"During that time numerous meetings have been held in various parts of the state and leading economists and tax experts from all over the United States have been consulted. As a result of these deliberations the following objectives have been adopted with respect to state and local taxation:

"1. Equality in the application of tax burden.

"2. Limitation of taxes on real property.

"3. Rigid economy in public expenditures.

"We suggest the following as providing the elements of a definite solution of the problem of over-taxation of real estate:

"1. That an effective and positive limitation be established covering ad valorem taxes which may be levied on real and personal property.

"2. That the state should provide for and assume a larger share of the burden of local taxation where the same is due to state control and regulation. This refers to such functions as education, public health, public welfare and highways.

"3. That the immediate, necessary relief may be secured from new sources of revenue, including limited luxury consumption taxes, severance taxes, stock transfer taxes, and, if necessary, personal income and other taxes.

"4. That provisions be made for rigid economy in the expenditures of both state and local governments.

"5. That immediate plans be made for the creation of a permanent tax commission.

"The California Real Estate Association, which was founded in 1905, has a strength of over 5,000 Realtors and their salesmen, and maintains close relations with the title, banking, building and loan and insurance fraternities.

Chinese Dies From Wounds; Other Held

Fight in San Mateo Ends in Death of Foon Shew in Hospital

Fook Shew, aged Chinese of San Mateo died yesterday at the Community hospital as the result of knife wounds alleged to have been inflicted by Chin Chew, another Chinese in an attempted holdup of Fook, Lee Gung and Lee Guey in a rear room of a store in San Mateo operated by You Kee. The attack upon the aged Chinese was made last week, when Chin is said to have entered the room wearing a black mask and carrying a knife. A fight ensued in which all four were injured.

The most seriously injured was Fook Shew, whose injuries necessitated his removal to the Community hospital where he passed away.

Chin was arrested by San Mateo police after a two hour search, and has been held since at the county jail awaiting the outcome of the injuries which he inflicted upon Fook. With the latter's passing it is likely that charges of murder will be preferred against him.

Exchange Hears Talk on Africa

Dr. Roy Woodhams Addresses
Service Club Meeting
On Travels

An interesting talk on his travels in Africa was given members of the Redwood City Exchange club by Dr. Roy Woodhams, medical missionary who is visiting here on his vacation from Africa where he has spent the past 14 years. Dr. Woodhams is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Woodhams of this city.

The habits of the Africans of the interior were portrayed by the speaker, who has lived during practically all of his time in Africa in a region where he has been entirely cut off from all other races. During one whole year Dr. Woodhams saw only one other white man.

The chairman of the meeting Tuesday evening was A. J. Stebbins. An interesting talk on the constitution of the United States was given by the chairman.

REAL ANTIQUE PIECE

FALLS CITY, Neb. (UP)—A relic of colonial America—a "flip mug"—is a possession of F. P. Wilson, who lives southwest of here. The mug was brought to America by the pilgrims in the seventeenth century. It is called a "flip mug" because a person must first flip back with his thumb the trigger on the lid in order to receive the mug's contents.

"The State Association has for its objects to unite real estate men and women; to exert effectively a combined influence on matters affecting real estate interests; to enable its members to transact business to better advantage by the adoption of rules and regulations; to maintain the high standard of conduct expressed in the Realtors' Code of Ethics; to co-operate with all other civic organizations in the civic development and economic growth of the state and its resources; to lend assistance to the enforcement of the real estate act which the Realtors themselves secured from the state legislature after nearly twenty years' effort, and to advocate legislation beneficial to real estate ownership and to present a united front against measures considered detrimental to the interests of real estate."

Members of the Kiwanis, Exchange and Lions clubs were each introduced by the president of their respective organizations.

Arrangements for this meeting were made by a committee headed by Walter Kellogg, Jr.

Indoor Golf Course Opened on Broadway

The Sequoia Indoor Golf Course opened Saturday giving Redwood City its first indoor miniature golf course. The new course was opened in the Foley building on Broadway by Clifford Anderson and Warner Britschgi, two well-known local men, who have leased the Broadway property and converted it into a first class course with many unusually beautiful features. The course was opened by Mayor D. R. Stafford and Building Inspector I. C. Drathman, who played the first match.

The course is a member of American Golfer's League and is an approved miniature course.

Legion Officers Installed Here

C. C. Filsinger Heads Local Post of American Legion

An interesting program was enjoyed by Redwood Post No. 105 American Legion Monday evening when the recently elected officers of the post were installed in office. The installation was performed by Past District Commander Allison Scofield of San Francisco, assisted by State Sergeant at Arms Dave McCullagh of San Mateo.

The meeting was attended by the American Legion Auxiliary, by a number of members from the Belmont Post of the Legion and by other ex-service men and their wives.

C. C. Filsinger was installed as post commander succeeding Thomas Vernal, who has held that position during the past year. The other officers installed Monday evening were:

W. W. Hendricks, first vice-commander; Lee Devons, 2nd vice-commander; Walter Prehn, sergeant-at-arms; Louis Corbin, historian; Floyd Grainger, chaplain; Louis Behrens, treasurer; Emmett Donnelly and Eugene Sampson, members of the executive committee; James DeBenedetti, Adjutant.

The post expressed its appreciation of the retiring commander, Tom Vernal for his work during his term as master, during which time the post has built up its membership from about thirty members to a present membership of 140, and for the other work he has done for the post.

Yomcan Club in Birthday Party

Boys' Service Club Observes
First Anniversary
By Party

The Yomcan club, a service club for young men just entering the business world, celebrated its first anniversary Tuesday evening with a big meeting at the Sequoia hotel at which there were present members of the Kiwanis, Exchange and Lions clubs.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Edward Hulme, professor of history at Stanford University, who during the whole of his address kept audience in almost breathless silence. Dr. Hulme is a speaker of unusual ability and presents his facts in such an interesting manner that his hearers are held spellbound.

The chairman of the meeting was Ed. Greely. An interesting review of the accomplishment of the club was given by Wesley Haydock. Past presidents' pins were presented to Wesley Haydock and Ed. Brookes by Ed. Greely.

Music during the evening was furnished by the Palese Alarm orchestra and a harmonica duet was presented by two young men from San Francisco.

An amusing skit called "C. O. D." was presented by Bob Letts and Arthur Lampkin. An impressive feature of the evening was the singing of the club songs by the members of the club. An individual candle was lit on a birthday cake in front of each of the Yomcan members as they stood and sang the song of their club.

Members of the Kiwanis, Exchange and Lions clubs were each introduced by the president of their respective organizations.

Arrangements for this meeting were made by a committee headed by Walter Kellogg, Jr.

Redwood Leading In "Y" Fund Drive

To R. M. Gordon, captain of team No. 12 in the financial campaign for the work of the Young Men's Christian Association, goes the honor of being first to reach a team quota in Redwood City. Almost single handed the work of solicitation was carried on in this district with a very splendid response on the part of the public. A number of calls have come in from various people whom solicitors have been unable to see thus far stating that they did not want to be overlooked.

Redwood City advanced its lead by bringing up the total to $1545 on last evening's report. San Mateo followed with $1488, and Burlingame took third place with $1074. Reports from the last mentioned cities shows that they are meeting with a splendid response on the public but with a smaller corps of workers they have been unable to see a large number of people as yet.

D. W. Williams, general chairman for this district, is asking every worker to see every prospect this week end so that the splendid record that Redwood has made may again place her in the forefront of the major communities of the county.

Menlo Japanese Jailed Here On Check Charges

Cleaner Held for Resisting
Officer Now Faces
Other Charge

J. K. Hirashimo, proprietor of a cleaning establishment in Menlo Park, and formerly proprietor of a similar establishment here, was booked at the county jail on Wednesday on a charge of issuing fictitious checks. Hirashimo was arrested on Thursday of last week on a charge of resisting an officer when he made an attack upon Deputy Sheriff Leland Quinlan when the latter called at his plant to serve some attachment papers filed by one of Hirashimo's creditors.

The Japanese was held at the jail until Wednesday, when he was released in custody of his uncle, who resides in San Mateo. At the same time the bad check charge was placed against Hirashimo by Chief of Police Love of Menlo Park. Hirashimo is now at liberty on a bail bond.

High School To Stage Mystery

Rehearsals are continuing for the "Rear Car," mystery-comedy to be presented October 4 by the Sequoia Players, dramatic organization at the local high school.

The stage crew under the direction of J. Edwin Spence, is putting in much outside time in the preparation of the elaborate stage setting for the production.

Laughs are guaranteed through the medium of William Ambrose, who is impersonating a negro porter, Titus Brown. Nights, darkness, shrills, uncanny laughs give Titus some harassing moments.

School Choral Class To Present Operetta

With a chorus of over 100 voices, the advanced choral classes of Sequoia Union High School will present an Irish musical comedy, "Bits of Blarney," October 24. The operetta will be directed by Otis M. Carrington, who is also the composer.

Modern costumes will be used with the exception of Mike, an old Irishman. He will wear the traditional Irish clothing.

"One of the reasons for choosing the play is that it gives an opportunity for so many to participate, and there will not be a great amount spent on the costumes," stated Mr. Carrington.

Republican Convention

By D. E. O'KEEFE

The State Republican Convention that met at Sacramento last Thursday was noted for the extreme harmony that prevailed in the deliberations of the delegates. It was as pleasant as a marriage feast, nothing occurring to mar the happiness and harmony of the big gathering of representative republicans from all portions of the state. The south vied with the north in paying homage and in the offer of support to the republican standard bearer for governor, James Rolph, Jr.

Ex-Governor F. W. Richardson, in a neat speech, to the convention pledged his earnest support to Rolph and the entire republican ticket. Governor C. C. Young, showed splendid sportsmanship, in urging his friends, particularly his legislative co-workers, to aid Rolph in making his administration even better than his own. He called on all republicans to give the republican nominee unstinted support during the campaign. The magnanimity shown by Governor Young to his successful rival since election has won him thousands of admirers throughout the state and demonstrates the bigness of his character, the broadness of his mind and his sportsmanship even in defeat.

James Rolph Jr.'s address to the convention was a masterpiece. In eloquent language he praised President Hoover and his administration, referring to him as "a great Californian and a great president." Mr. Rolph in pleasing phrases thanked the people of California for the honor conferred on him in making him the republican standard bearer. He promised to serve the people to the best of his ability. In glowing language he referred to the magnanimity of Governor Young. His able speech brought forth thundering applause from the delegates and spectators.

The ten republican congressmen appeared before the convention making commendable talks, all praising the ability, courage and dignity of President Hoover. All predicted his re-election as president. Congressman A. M. Free of this district made by far the most forcible speech of the representatives in congress. His eulogy of the administration of Herbert Hoover brought forth deafening applause.

The platform adopted by the convention side-stepped the prohibition question, which it should have done, for it is not an issue in the campaign, and lauded the republican administration at Washington, the administration of Governor Young and pledged party support to its standard bearer, James Rolph and the whole republican ticket. The platform was commendable and is satisfactory to the entire republican party of the state. On this platform the party will go forth to victory in November. Of course, the election in November will only be a ratification of the contest held last August. However, the republican party is to conduct a vigorous campaign to show its strength and spirit and demonstrate its dominating influence in the state.

The republican love feast, for that was all the convention was, adjourned with salvos of applause for the ticket.

Frank Merriam, the republican nominee for lieutenant governor and presiding officer of the convention, displayed dignity and poise as chairman of the large gathering.

Old Spanish Custom

The revolution in Argentina is the most disturbing of all of the recent political upsets in Latin-America, and Washington while outwardly viewing the situation with steady calmness, is naturally very much concerned about the troubled conditions in the republics of the South who are reverting to the old Spanish custom of revolutions. The United States is maintaining a policy of "hands off" even though our State Department is naturally wondering: "What next?"

Cheer Up

Public reports indicate that business is gradually getting a little better, every way nearly every day—even though it does slip back a notch or two occasionally. The country nevertheless is convalescing from its recent attack of Wall Street-itis.

New Wine for Old Bottles

This is a day when the accepted is taken from its prosaic place in habitual public acceptance and made much of in speech, song and story, in order that the public may be made this-or-that-conscious.

Henry Ford takes so well known but little revered a utility as electricity and says that "the biggest job before the utilities of the U. S. today is to get electricity into the minds of the people" for "the people" say he, "always see what they are shown. They need only to be shown how tremendously more electricity may do for them if they will only let it."

We may thus expect shortly anything from an international treaty to a jazz rhapsody beginning:

Oh the glowing mystery,
The ancient history
Of bright electricity.
Etc!

Miss Louise Ledtje, fashion expert, points out in a trade publication recently that American knitters must become more style minded. She turns to jersey cloth, an old, tried and trusted friend of the Feminine Public, and shows that only recently have its manufacturers become alert to the many new ways of styling it for fresh and novel public appeal.

As Miss Ledtje says, "there is no season of the year when knit jerseys are not perfectly suitable and seasonable, and there is no wardrobe which cannot afford to contain costumes of this unique fabric, but the point is that sales must be promoted on a style appeal to public fashion-consciousness rather than economy."

New identities for old aspects: new characterizations for old roles; new-mindedness for lethargy! These are the underlying psychological lessons of modern business.

So the jersey manufacturers for instance begin to inaugurate new appeals. They take standard worsted and mix it with strong, sparkling dune cotton—and lo and behold a decidedly new and attractive expression and character in jersey is evolved. They put "nubs", new color combinations, new designs into this once commonplace though utilitarian cloth, and we, The Public, love becoming "jersey-conscious."

All this, it will be seen, goes back inevitably to "the minds of the people." Industrial advancement has not after all led away from the human element; nor from attention to human reactions.

Thus we read in the Clothing Trade Journal: "The biggest job before industry and labor in the United States today is to get unemployment out of the minds of the people."

Public Men

In glancing through the editorial columns of the metropolitan press one cannot but note the ease and alacrity manifested by some writers in criticizing the officials at the helm of government. How natural it has become to take issue with this or that statesman, or to cite his failures rather than his accomplishments. How quickly enthusiasm cools and the once ardent constituent becomes apathetic and critical.

It is seemingly easier to criticize an executive for those things he has left undone than to examine conscientiously and acclaim his record of performance. Errors of omission are frequently played up by an antagonistic press far more invitingly to the reader than the actual errors of commission, even though the latter may be few and far between.

A legislator introduces on the floor of the House or Senate a measure designed to accomplish a great, public good. Supporters jump in and solidly back the lawmaker—for a time—then owing to the fact that stupendous obstacles are not overcome in short order, these supporters become lukewarm and their one-time ardent enthusiasm turns to pessimism and dark forebodings.

Again, it is quite a habit, these days to charge everything of an unfavorable nature to the administration. A collapse in the stock market, trade depression, unemployment, etc., are directly laid at the door of the Chief Executive.

Instead of maintaining a calm, clear faith and trust in the men elected by popular suffrage to high office, there are those hysterical ones who fly into paroxysms of terror or rage and, forgetting their earlier confidence, make generous use of the invective, thereby offering no real solution of the problem involved by muddling things generally, hampering the executive and bewildering their fellow countrymen.

Let us have faith in our public men. They are but human beings like ourselves, even though endowed with that particular astuteness that their respective offices demand. They can accomplish a great deal more with the generous support of a trusting electorate. While there may be some officials who are unworthy, the majority are conscientious and try to do the right thing.

In the interests of the Nation let our people encourage those men who are holding the reins of government and are faithfully performing their duties. In this way they will be enabled to render even greater service. The country will benefit correspondingly and our citizens will become more closely knit in the common fabric of sturdy Americanism.

It Seems to Me by HEYWOOD BROWN

Here is a story of our New York Mayor which is new to me and comes on good authority. Jimmy Walker attended a banquet at which the preceding speaker was a distinguished California educator. The native son was extolling the glories of his home land and making our own Empire State seem pallid in comparison.

California, according to the orator, was more richly blessed in everything. In particular it had more universities. "I myself," remarked the speaker, "have attended no less than five colleges, all of them in the State of California." "That," said Jimmy Walker, "shows the difference between the coast and here. If a New Yorker can't make the grade the first time he quits and goes to work."

"If I Had a 16-Year-Old Daughter."

"You're always slapping away at censorship," writes B. W., and so let me ask you a simple question. "Would you take your 16-year-old daughter to see 'Fifty Million Frenchmen'?" Don't quibble. Give me an honest answer."

If I protested violently that I'm not nearly old enough to have a 16-year-old daughter, and in addition have no 16-year-old daughter, I might be accused of quibbling. There is no necessity for that. I can easily give B. W. an honest and a simple answer. I wouldn't think of taking my 16-year-old daughter to see "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

Seats, as I understand it, are still largely in the hands of speculators—that is, the best ones. Having been a dramatic critic once upon a time, I am ruined for anything but the best seats. The first or second balcony might do well enough for my daughter, but these old eyes and ears and these old legs are happier in about the fifth row—two on the aisle. Two seats of that sort, for myself and 16-year-old daughter, would cost in the neighborhood of $30.

To me $30 is an extravagant sum if spent on entertainment. When I spend $30 in a single evening for mere frivolity I should much prefer that the young lady in the other seat be neither a daughter nor any other female relative.

How could I consistently give a party like that for my own child and then the next day or so exhort her to spend less on clothes and stick more rigorously to frocks of simple gingham?

Besides, the sum spent for tickets would only be a part of the entire evening's total. There would be the dinner and the night club later. I would not care to take a 16-year-old girl to speakeasies and cabarets. They have no such thing as half price cover charges for minors.

Let Her Find Her Own Escorts.

And at 16 in our modern age a girl has begun to grow up. She is no longer an infant. She should know her own way about. Since there is no daughter, I have every right to assume that she would be a young lady not without charm. In such a case I would most certainly refuse to take her to "Fifty Million Frenchmen" or any of the rest of the party. At that age with her beauty and intelligence she ought to be able to find some young man to buy the tickets and escort her. Why should I assume the responsibility? Let the young lady find some easy mark for herself. And, by all means, outside the home.

For the Adolescent Mind.

If I were to answer in more serious fashion I would say that "Fifty Million Frenchmen" seems to me a highly amusing show, that its ribaldry is intelligent and entertaining. I have always felt that the facts of life need not be imparted to the young as matters wholly tragic. And so if I were taking my 16-year-old daughter on a theatre party my first choice would naturally be "Lysistrata."

But the question asked by Mr. B. W. would probably be academic even if there were a Miss Brown. Children of today don't wait until they are advanced in years before beginning to run their own lives. I should hate to try to interfere. The important question would not be what I thought about "Fifty Million Frenchmen" but her own reaction. I am speaking now of Hortense Brown.

I could tell her what seemed good conduct and bad conduct for people of my own age and acquaintance, but these same standards need not apply to her at all. Her code might be far more conservative or more radical than my own. It would be largely her own business.

I have only the dimmest idea of what is good for 16-year-old girls. I've never known any very well, and among the latest crop I have no friends at all. Ethics must have a close relationship to practicality. Conduct is tested best by finding out how it works. If "Fifty Million Frenchmen" would be bad for my daughter, then I should prefer to have her stay away. It might be good. How could I tell? The only way for her to find out whether she ought to see it or not would be for her to go and take a look at it. And then it would be a little late to put this particular musical comedy on the index.

And so I'm afraid that I shall have to quibble in my answer, after all. A completely truthful answer to B. W.'s question would have to include the reservation, "I really couldn't say without consulting her. And that, owing to circumstances over which I have no control, is impossible."

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery leave home to seek their fortunes in New York.

Sally's brother, Bert, who is in love with Lois, follows them.

Lois meets a young man whom she knew when she was a wealthy woman's secretary.

He and a chap named FRISBY show her and Sally little attention, but Lois' thoughts are chiefly on the problems of existence.

Lois finally gets a job with a firm of interior decorators. Sally struggles for a foothold in the movies. They have a hard time making both ends meet.

Sally enters hospital training, finally convinced that the films hold no future for her.

Lois is absorbed in her own work. During her employer's illness, she is sent to the palatial residence of James Walton to make a preliminary report.

Sally's liking for gay company causes a coolness between herself and Lois. It also involves Lois in difficulties with Bert.

Lois is strongly attracted to Walton, who is much older than herself, and very rich and distinguished.

CHAPTER 17

Unconscious Strategy

After that, Lois saw a great deal of Walton. He came down from town almost every afternoon, and frequently took her home in his car. Sometimes he joined her in luncheon. She tried to tell herself that his frequent visits had a simple explanation— it was not in town that summer—naturally, he spent more and more time at his country home. But she knew—she knew! And she was both happy and terrified.

She remembered Philip Harding and Martin Frisby. What had she, she asked herself, to attract a man of Walton's type?

There was no one to confide in. Sally seemed to be drifting away from her, and Lois was too proud to pry into the reason for it. She had guessed that Sally was flirting recklessly, that she knew the danger of the game she was playing and that she avoided her dearest, friend, lest she be made to stop and think.

Lois felt drawn to confide in Mrs. Dunleigh, but, when that lady was able to come to the shop again, Lois thought that, after all, she might regard the matter as just a silly girlish infatuation for an older and fascinating man.

So Lois kept her feelings to herself and hoped that Walton wouldn't notice any change in her. She was terribly in awe of him, she was frightened by him, she was fascinated. She did not stop to consider that his age and his prominence and his position, coupled with her youthful inexperience, created a situation that was dangerous. She had never before been in love. She had no way to measure the depth or the breadth of her feeling for Walton.

The time came when the end of her work was in sight and she appalled at her own reactions. She couldn't look beyond the day when she would turn over the key to the housekeeper and take the train at the little station for the last time.

With this discovery, panic seized her. She felt that she could not be alone in that last moment when her handiwork should be completed and she would be free to go out of Walton's presence forever. So she persuaded Mrs. Dunleigh to inspect the complete job. When Mrs. Dunleigh had gone over everything, she looked quizzically at her young helper and smiled. "Lois was flushed and eager."

"Did I do well? Or was it too awful? Please tell me," she pleaded.

"My child, it was wonderful. I always knew you had it in you. If Ann Draper were here, she tell me not to spoil you with praise over your first job, but I've got to. I'm old enough to know that your first praise will mean more to you than all subsequent success, and I'll tell you that your Walton job is a wov.

"But one generally gets what one looks for," she protested. "Maybe you force your bad luck."

"I don't call it bad luck to have no illusions about women."

"You lose a lot by not having them," she declared, with youthful emphasis.

He smiled—that irresistible smile that came so rarely.

"My child, I am twenty-one years older than you. You can't teach me anything."

"I know that. I'm not trying to. But I don't want you to teach me pessimism."

"What do you want from life?" he asked abruptly.

"Success," she answered promptly. "Success—along what line? Marriage, I suppose?"

She shook her head. "I don't know. Maybe, later. But love must come first. That's what every woman wants. Just now, of course, there's only my work."

He smiled again. "You're not going to be banal and tell me that you live only for your career. Come, be honest."

"I am honest . . . and I don't know. What do you live for?"

"Positivity," he answered promptly. "You will accuse me of egotism when I say that I think my brain and my talents are too fine to be lost to the world in death. I want children to perpetuate me. If I marry, it will be solely for the sake of my gift to posterity."

She protested, "I dare say I'm incurably romantic, but . . . what about love?"

He said deliberately: "There's too much nonsense talked about so-called love and its relation to marriage. Our vision should be clouded by our emotions."

Lois shivered slightly in the soft summer warmth. She asked, a little bewilderedly: "Love, then, would have no place in your scheme of things?"

"Not primarily. It might come—later. It is conceivable that I should come to love a beautiful and intelligent woman who was my wife. But, if I were given the choice between a woman I loved who was not what I required for the mother of my children, and a woman who possessed all those requisites, but whom I didn't love romantically, I shouldn't hesitate for a moment. The woman I loved, but who was lacking, would be put aside."

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 25 (UP)—

The screen colony always has been kind to people attempting to come back and it gave another example of the characteristic when Dorothy Mackaye appeared here after a three-year absence.

The actress, just recently released from San Quentin prison, received a tremendous ovation at every performance of "A Cup of Sugar" at the Hollywood Vine Street theatre.

"It was too wonderful," she said after her initial appearance. "It makes one realize that human beings are kind and that even a convict can come back."

"The applause just made me choke up and I thought I'd break down right on the stage. They have given me a real welcome back and I'm certain I've passed the worst hurdle."

Strictly speaking Miss Mackaye never was member of the screen colony for, although she played the legitimate stage here for a number of years, she never appeared in pictures.

She had many friends among the film figures, however, and her late husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy leader, was a favorite in screen circles. So was Paul Kelly, the juvenile film player, who went to

UP IN THE AIR

But only in practice. When the season opens in earnest, Russell Avery, star University of California end, will be right in the melee.

DETERMINED ANGLER

CRYSTAL BAY, Lake Minnetonka, Minn. (UP)—It takes a persistent fish to get away from Mrs. V. W. Toberman of Minneapolis. While fishing at Crystal Bay last week end Mrs. Toberman had caught a number of sunfish. She was using a tiny hook and worms. Suddenly her bobber went under. Her line broke close to the pole before she could land the fish and he got away. The next morning Mrs. Toberman was fishing at the same place again when she saw a bobber floating nearby. She rowed to the spot and this time landed the fish which still had her tackle securely hooked in his jaw.

FIRST HOLDUP ATTEMPT

ROUND LAKE, N. Y. (UP)—A record of 56 years without a holdup at Round Lake was broken when two men attempted to rob Mrs. George S. Wilson, proprietress of a drug store. Up to that time there had been no holdup since 1874 when the village was founded.

ORDERS THUMB OFF

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UP)—When Edward Perry, Decatur, caught his hand in the wreckage of a burning freight car here recently, he was able to extricate all but his thumb. After repeated efforts to dislodge the lone member had met with failure, Perry ordered a companion to cut the finger off. No knife being at hand, his companion severed it with several blows of a spade.

Lois was so silent that he looked down at her with his quizzical smile. "I tear your illusions to shreds, don't I?"

She shook her head. "Even you can't quite do that."

His brows lifted. "Even I?" he repeated.

She flushed, tried to laugh, and found herself breathless. She knew, in that moment, that Walton was strongly attracted to her.

She knew, too, that she was in love with him.

San Quentin about the same time that Miss Mackaye did.

Miss Mackaye was convicted of having attempted to extort facts concerning the death of Raymond. Kelly was convicted of manslaughter for having beaten Raymond to death in a fight over the actress.

She spent ten months in the penitentiary while Kelly was released after a two-year term.

The actress intends to stay in Southern California to complete her come-back fight.

"She desires to build her career again because of her eight-year-old daughter, Valeria, because she hopes to be a good example to others now in San Quentin and because she wants to prove that it is possible to come back."

"I want to make my come-back right here in Hollywood where I suffered my set-back," she said. "People here realize that it isn't easy for me and they are willing to give me the break."

Sometime ago, Alma Rubens, once one of the leading screen stars, was given a similarly enthusiastic greeting when she made her first appearance after she came out of Patton institute where she was under treatment to cure her of the use of narcotics.

MRS. FRED LAMB GIVES BRIDGE LUNCHEON

Mrs. Fred Lamb was hostess to twelve ladies at her home on Duane street Wednesday, when she entertained at a bridge luncheon.

The guests were seated at small tables with lavender and yellow panies as center pieces, the same colors being used in the detail of the appointments.

Those present were Mrs. Henry A. Beeger, Mrs. J. R. Fox, Mrs. John McCrea, Mrs. Ernest Werder, Mrs. L. R. Eaton, Mrs. J. N. Blood, Mrs. Carl Stoner, Mrs. William Bruce, Mrs. Harry Gelbman, Mrs. Milton Marcus and Mrs. Leslie Rowell of Berkeley.

Honors in the bridge games were won by Mrs. Rowell and Mrs. Werder while the consolation was awarded Mrs. Blood.

Mrs. George Kelting and infant son, David Ivan, are expected home today from the Community Hospital, where the child was born on September 15. Mr. and Mrs. Kelting are making their home for the present with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kelting, on Oakdale street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ritland left Tuesday for Pocatello, Idaho where Mr. Ritland will join the faculty of the University of Idaho. Mrs. Ritland was Miss Alberta Choate before her wedding this summer. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Choate of Wilson street in this city. Mr. Ritland was formerly associated with the Federal Telegraph Company in Palo Alto. He graduated with the class of 1926 from Stanford University as an electrical engineer.

COMPANIONS OF FOREST HOLD CARD PARTY

Mrs. Liza Hayes of 438 1/2 Guerrero street, San Francisco, was the recipient of the double woolen blanket that was given away by the Companions of the Forest of America on Friday evening, September 19th, 1930.

In the card games in Foresters hall on that night high scores went to Mrs. Bertha Palmer, Mrs. A. S. Jones, Mrs. J. W. Eads, Mrs. Menolan, Mr. A. H. Harrison, Mrs. Winter, Mr. L. B. Winger, Mrs. M. Hawkes, Mrs. Haynie Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Boos. Consolations went to Mrs. A. Disbrow and Mrs. Winger.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

The week-end was a very happy one for Mr. Paul Knapp when he was surprised by his brother, Edward C. Knapp, and a group of school day friends of North Hollywood. Among those present was the famous comedian, Guy Cook, of Hollywood, with whom Mr. Knapp spent much time when a boy at Hollywood. The jolly group spent a fortnight at Marysville, where Mr. Knapp's sister resides. Returning they wished Mr. Knapp much luck and happiness in his new home now nearing completion in Atherton.

The group enjoyed their stay as well as the climate which was mentioned repeatedly by even the Hollywood folks. The surprise was double as Mr. Knapp's folks, E. A. Knapp and wife, just returned home from their sixth trip across the Atlantic.

Mr. Paul Knapp is a big booster for Hollywood, the place of his birth, and where he was in business before coming to what he calls the second heaven, the San Francisco Peninsula. He has been employed for the past nine years by the Pacific Gas & Electric Company as their "trouble shooter."

MRS. BOGIE HOSTESS TO FACULTY WIVES

Mrs. Donald Bogie was hostess to the Faculty Wives' Sewing Club Wednesday evening at her home in Fulton street. Mrs. S. S. Mayo and Mrs. B. E. Myers assisted Mrs. Bogie in receiving her guests.

Those present were the Mesdames Donald Bogie, A. C. Argo, Fred Elise William Boos, Otis M. Carrington, Charles Brown, Edwin DeSmith, Alex. M. Cuthbertson, James M. Eva, John Gill, Ramon Dimick, D. F. Gatchell, Klyne Headley, Edwin Spence, S. S. Mayo, Carl Underwood, B. E. Myers and Claude Van Patten.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS ENTERTAIN

San Mateo Council of the Knights of Columbus gave a card party and dance Saturday evening, September

WOODSIDE

Mr. Ettore Avenali and his daughter, Miss Marianna have gone to Los Angeles for a visit of two weeks.

Miss Maude Stillson, the new leader of the Woodside Girl Scouts, met with her charges for the first time on Monday afternoon.

Nine members of the Woodside Parent-Teacher Association journeyed to Pescadero on Friday last to attend a meeting of the order at the Pescadero high school.

Miss Mary Volpiano has returned to her home here from the Mills hospital.

Kings Mountain Road is receiving the attention of the authorities and is being much improved. With the new surface being given to it, it should divide the traffic with the La Honda road thus relieving the thoroughfare.

Mrs. John D. Gish is spending the week at Saratoga.

The first of the seasons social affairs under the direction of the Parent-Teacher Association will be the card party to be held this Friday night. This is one of a series of six that have been planned.

The miniature golf course being built by Frank Mowwe is already proving an attraction although it is still in the construction stage.

Sequoia Teams to Clash With Menlo

By GENE HARTNEY

Sequoia Union High School athletic teams will all swing into action again this week. The varsity football team will face Menlo High across the gridiron this afternoon; the 130's football squad met San Mateo 130's yesterday afternoon. Tonight in the Sequoia gym the Sequoia lightweight cage teams will meet Lick-Wilmerding high of San Francisco in the third home contest of the season.

Several of the varsity football team first stringers are still laid up from injuries incurred in the Salinas game and will undoubtedly be given a rest during the Menlo high encounter in preparation of the Burlingame contest, which is two weeks away.

The Sequoia 110's have switched their line-up in search of a guard to replace Ed Matheson, who was declared ineligible on account of having too many expensives for the Tens division in the Peninsula Athletic League. The Tens defeated St. Ignatius high in a practice tilt, in the Sequoia gym Tuesday, winning 10 to 4, while the 120's took their match, 20 to 8, in a fast contest.

The Sequoia 130-pound squad made a poor showing in their ragged game against Salinas, which they dropped 19 to 7. Coach Tom Carleton has been drilling his outfit in preparation for the San Mateo battle yesterday. The P. A. L. schedule was drawn up last night for the 130's. This move was made necessary because of San Mateo High withdrawing their 130 team from the league.

This move left Palo Alto, San Jose and Sequoia, the same teams that battled to a triple tie last year, remaining in the league.

The Sequoia high swimming team will open its practice season next Tuesday, when the novice team meets Polytechnic high of San Francisco in the Sequoia pool.

Four divisions will compete in the practice meet: 100-pound, 110-pound, 120-pound, and 130-pound, with a number of events to be run off in each division. Coach Jim Eva expects to uncover valuable material for his swimming team next spring from this practice tilt.

MINIATURE GOLF BUSY SEEKING WINTER QUARTERS

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22 (UP)—The miniature golf course industry, youngest member of the American entertainment family, is to put on its winter cloak soon.

The current problem of managers of the Lilliputian courses is to find indoor space where the game may be played this winter. The managers find suitable rooms hard to find, either because of high rent or undesirable location.

Miniature golf fans are predicting that cold weather will find a greater number of the tiny courses than at present.

FORESTVILLE (UP)—Sixty-nine years failed to dim the "shootin' eyes" of Mrs. Louisa Martinelli. She drew a bead on a 168-pound buck, fired, and brought it down.

SANTA BARBARA (UP)—Oscar pet "bossum" in a sporting goods store, broke out of his cage, devoured two poisonous tarantulas, and didn't even get a "tummy ache."

STUDENTS INVITED

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 22 (UP)—Students of all public, parochial and private schools in the state have been invited to be guests of the University of Wisconsin at its opening football game of the season here Oct. 4. More than 10,000 of these elementary and high school students are expected to see the double-header between the university football squad and Carlton and Lawrence college teams.

DRAKE TO UNDERTAKE AMBITIOUS SCHEDULE

DES MOINES, Sept. 25. (UP)—Drake university will open an ambitious 1930 gridiron schedule of nine games against Oregon at Chicago on October 3 and finish with a battle against Temple in Philadelphia on November 29, playing only three games at home.

Four of the Bulldog's contests will be played at night. Coach Oscar Solem has 15 letter-men returning around which to mold this fall's eleven.

GAMES ALL DAY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 25 (UP)—During the 1930 season, Marquette university will play football games in the morning, afternoon and night. The Golden avalanche has five night games, three in the afternoon, and one Thanksgiving morning.

Some of the most valuable racehorses in the world are destined to change hands before the end of the year as a result of Lord Derby's decision to curtail his racing activities in England.

Tom Creighton, who writes from London, sees this announcement as of world-wide importance in horse race circles. He says that owners and breeders from the United States and the Argentine, besides all the big men in the racing game in Europe, are sure to be greatly interested in the sales, which will probably take place at Newmarket in October and December.

Increased taxation, and the need for drastic economies are given as the reason for the Earl of Derby's decision, which came as a great surprise to the racing world. He intends to discontinue the services of his private trainer, Frank Butters, at the end of the present season, and it is expected that his manager, the Hon. George Lambton, will resume in the capacity of trainer-manager, with a very much depleted stable next year.

Lord Derby, England's most popular sporting nobleman, has been one of the leading supporters of the turf for the past 50 years, and has been a member of the Jockey Club since 1895. He owns a stable and stud at Stanley House, Newmarket, which was recently valued at something like a million pounds sterling (about $5,000,000). Apart from having about 50 horses in training, the establishment includes possibly the best collection of brood mares in the world. Also the famous stallions, Sansovino, which won the Derby at Epsom in 1924; also Phalaris, one of the most successful sires in recent years; Phalaris' son Pharo, whose stock is likely to prove of equal merit, and Swynford, a noted stayer and getter of stayers.

During the last ten years Lord Derby's horses have won over a million and a half dollars in stakes, and so far this season his stable has netted approximately 150,000 dollars. Most of the winning horses were bred in his own paddocks. He has no longer seen on the racetracks.

MENLO PARK

A surprise was sprung at the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening last when City Judge David Patrick handed in his resignation to the council shortly after it had convened. It came as a thunderbolt from a clear sky as no intimation was given that the popular young jurist was to tender his resignation of the position he had filled so well for over a year. Mr. Patrick gave as a reason for retiring that his duties as instructor at Stanford required all his time. Mayor Weeden arose and with considerable emotion declared that it was with the deepest regret of himself and the council that the resignation would be accepted. He glowingly spoke of the services of the retiring judge. It was with considerable reluctance that the motion to accept the resignation was made. Jean Hoss, local baker, was unanimously chosen to fill the vacancy. The new judge has been a resident of Menlo Park for the past eight years. He has some knowledge of his duties being at one time a publisher at his home town, Oregon City, Oregon, and his detail on the paper was to report police court news. His brother, Hal Hoss is secretary of the State of Oregon and is slated to be the next governor of that state. He is conceded to be the cleverest orator in the north-west.

A lengthy communication was read from Ross & Ross attorneys for Mrs. Plate, asking that the council take action on an application by their client for a building permit for a structure on Live Oak street, which is to be opened. Mrs. Plate wants to know if she is to secure the permit, or whether condemnation proceedings be started against her property, through which the street is to be extended. She offered the holding to the council at cost, $1163.70. Unless something were done the attorneys stated they would begin an action against the council. The clerk was instructed to notify Ross & Ross that proceedings had been begun to extend the street and that the council was to be held on Thursday, October 7, at 8:30 o'clock in the city hall, when all protestants may appear and be heard.

No action was taken by the council on an invitation of the San Mateo Flower Festival to have a representative there on October 25th. City Attorney Whitworth presented a resolution of intention 30-1, empowering the council to acquire the necessary property to extend Live Oak street and creating an assessment district. The amount of land required is 52 feet which is to be purchased from the adjoining owners. If a price cannot be agreed upon then condemnation proceedings will be started by the council. The resolution was ordered to be published twice and the public hearing was set for Thursday, October 7, at 8:30 o'clock in the city hall, when all protestants may appear and be heard.

The fire department was granted permission to conduct its annual dance on Wednesday evening, October 8.

The new judge was sworn in by the clerk and began his duties next day. The council adjourned to meet on October 7.

Monday evening Menlo Parlor N. D. G. W. entertained in honor of the grand president of the order, Estelle Evans of Antioch. The hall was beautifully decorated with ferns, flowers and flags and made a picturesque background for the various colored evening dresses worn by the members.

The grand president complimented Menlo Parlor for the fine way in which the ritualistic work was presented. Mrs. Clarence Dyer became a member of Menlo Parlor. There were 70 visitors in attendance, representing 12 parlors from the various parts of the state, among which were Past Grand President Margaret G. Hill; First Grand Vice - President Evelyn Carlson; Grand Secty Sallie Thaler; Grand Trustee Anne Thuesen; District Deputy Emeline McDonald and Supervising District Deputy Ida Mesquite. After the meeting the grand president was given a hand-painted plate and gifts were also given Grand Trustee Thuesen, District Deputy Grand President McDonald and Senior District Deputy Grand President Ida Mesquite. Laura Bartel, past president of Menlo Parlor, was presented a diamond past president's pin from Menlo Parlor for her faithful service to the parlor.

A banquet was then served and all enjoyed a social hour.

Dr. Whitewolf is dead. He has gone to the Happy Hunting Grounds, there to dwell with his people. The Great Chief called him last Sunday at Oakland, where he had lived for some time. Dr. Whitewolf came to Menlo Park before the earthquake in 1906 and had resided here until a few years ago. He departed on a lecture tour, never returning. The doctor was born in the Indian reservation, now Oklahoma, ninety-three years ago. His father was a Canadian and his mother a full blooded Indian woman, a member of the Choctaw tribe. Whitewolf inherited all the spirit and daring of his tribe and as a youngster followed the Indians of the territory over vale and mountains and was with them in their wars with the pale faces. Possessing the ability of his Canadian father he soon became a leader of his people and at an early age became the medicine man of his tribe. He was skillful with the use of herbs, curing maladies by their application. While here he was often consulted by invalids and made numerous cures by the use of wild plants and herbs grown in the mountain region. He was a prominent figure on the streets while here, attracting attention by his flowing black locks that reached his shoulders, his erect carriage and slow walk and his peculiar dress. He invariably wore a broad brimmed hat, swallow tail coat and a dark tie. He was small of stature and he did not possess any facial traits of the Indian. The large acquiline nose and high cheek bones were not dominant in his features. On occasions he would appear in his costly Indian costume and perform a war dance, a dance that was dear to his heart, and which he often performed with his people in his younger years. Whitewolf participated in the Indian wars of the west in the sixties and seventies and later. He learned the art of war from his grandfather, Grayeagle, was chief of the Choctaws for many years and who was a terror to the white residents of the west, 80 years ago. Chief Grayeagle was finally captured and killed. Whitewolf had all the daring and ingenuity of his grandfather. General Nelson A. Miles, the noted Indian fighter, in his writings refers to Whitewolf as "the little Red Devil" of the mountains. He often worried Miles' army by his maneuverings of the Indians in the mountain passes. He would often scoop down upon the American army inflicting severe punishment, killing many soldiers.

Whitewolf was with the redmen in the disastrous battle of the Little Big Horn, where General Custer and his army was surrounded by the Indian warriors and killed, only a few soldiers escaping. Custer, with his back to the wall, fought bravely but was killed. Whitewolf never told anyone what his part in the conflict was. The treachery displayed by the warriors on that occasion was so revolting that Whitewolf rarely referred to the battle.

The Indian wars being over Whitewolf made a tour of the United States and Europe with a medicine company, lecturing on the merits of his products. He became a fluent speaker, holding large audiences by his eloquence. On these occasions he appeared in Indian dress, wearing his addresses with Indian stories and customs. Whitewolf had gained a fund of knowledge in his travels which he demonstrated in his conversation. For hours he could entertain his hearers by the tales of his travels. Whitewolf was an intelligent, man self educated, and possessed a certain degree of polish.

In 1902 Dr. White Wolf went on a prospecting trip to Tonopah and Goldfield, Nevada, and was among the first to locate claims there. Mrs. Noel, mother of Miss Noel, had been a patient of the Doctors for some time, and she and a friend of the Doctor's financed the trip. Doctor White Wolf was quite successful, and in about four years was able to repay the money advanced and to clear about $30,000 for each of the three.

Up to this time it appears Dr. White Wolf had not touched liquor of any kind, but new acquaintances in some way started him to drinking heavily, and in a year he had lost more than half of his money in a new mining venture into which he went along with some Nevada people. The excessive use of liquor dulled his better judgment and the balance went in various ways and losing ventures.

In appreciation of his medical service to her mother, Miss Noel gave him a home for many years. In 1925 he left there and made his home in Oakland and vicinity up to the time of his death.

Dr. White Wolf was a child of fortune, born on the reservation, where he learned the traditions and customs of the red man, he sought the broader fields of civilization and by experience and study made himself mentally equal to the white man.

Dr. White Wolf was proud of his Indian blood, proud of his people, and let us hope that he is dwelling with them in the Happy Hunting Grounds above.

Menlo Park has had a Cook for a judge. Now it has a baker. In time it may have the candlestick maker. That's no joke. For the present, however, justice is to be meted out by Hoss.

Mrs. Sarah O'Neill, widow of Arthur O'Neill, departed for Honolulu last week to remain for an indefinite period. Her many friends in Menlo Park wish her success on the islands, the land of the avocado tree.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Worrell of Stanford Park, have just returned from a trip through Oregon and Washington. They crossed the Canadian border and enjoyed the scenery in the land where Volstead's name is unknown.

The appropriation for the base hospital made by the late congress will be soon available and much activity is looked for very soon.

CRANDON, Wis. (UP) — Forest rangers fighting fires in the Roberts Lake district killed a freak deer with shovels after a short chase through the brush. The animal was a yearling buck with a short set of horns. It was totally blind and had large hairless warts, many several inches in circumference, about its head, body and legs. The animal was able to make its way through the woods with the agility of a normal deer.

Strange Tales
Told of Animal
Life in Alaska

SANTA CLARA UNIVERSITY, Sept. 25.—With tales of bears who take beauty baths and salmon who spawn in volcano craters, Father Bernard R. Hubbard, S. J., head of the geology department at Santa Clara, is home from the Alaskan wilds.

Father Hubbard was accompanied on his trip by four athletes of St. Ignace and Santa Clara Universities. During the party's explorations they descended into the depths of the world's two largest craters, Aniakchak and Veniaminoff, both of which are active.

"From Aniakchak bay we made the trip up the uncharted Aniakchak river in an outboard dory; the boat 16 miles inland and after a five-day trek we reached the volcano's base. Two days later we moved inside the crater through a break in the 2000-foot wall that allows a river to gush forth in a series of rapids.

"The first sight of the crater took our breaths away. Inside the 20-mile circumference rises a majestic mountain the height of Vesuvius, smoking continuously in several places. A lake two miles long, in which salmon spawn, is located in one corner.

"Bear trails lead to soda iron trails at the head of the lake and we found that bears had dug holes in the warm mud to enjoy mud baths."

The trip to Veniaminoff took them through miles of all but impassable virgin wilderness. Once there they saw one of the least known volcanoes in the world, its cone ejecting ashes and smoke from a hollow in the surrounding ice.

Motorists Here
Pay Less For Fees

State's Mortality Stays Low
In Spite of Influx Of Invalids

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 25. (UP)—California motorists pay less in fees for the privilege of operating their cars than motorists of virtually any other state in the nation.

Of 25 states visited recently by Victor Killick, statistician of the California Patrol, not one had a registration fee as low as the $3 flat fee charged in California.

Most of the states, Killick found, are still using the old horsepower rating system or scheduling their fees on a weight basis. Under those systems fees ranged from $8.80 for light vehicles to $40 for heavy machines.

California motorists paid a total of approximately $10,500,000 in 1929 for registering their cars. New York motorists, with only a few thousand

Statistics Show Charges For

In Other States

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN
SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 25. (UP)—A complete revision downward of California's death rate has followed the state's big growth during the last 10 years, according to the state department of public health.

Despite the large influx of elderly and ill persons from all parts of the more cars, paid $39,250,000 last year. Pennsylvania, with a smaller registration than California, collected $29,250,000 in registration fees.

Twenty of the states have a 4-cent gasoline tax, which is one cent higher than in California. Nine have a 5-cent tax and three have a 6-cent tax.

In many of the states visited by Killick, gasoline taxes are diverted for general administration expenses or schools and other purposes, while in California all of the money derived from the 3-cent tax is spent on highways.

Killick also found that virtually every state makes an annual charge to applicants for licenses to operate motor vehicles and some make a further charge for examination of such applicants. No such charges are made in California.

Many states also exact a fee of $1 for the legal ownership (pink slip) certificate, which is given free in California to the motorist registering his car for the first time.

California's mortality rate, in the light of revised figures, compares favorably with those of other states. The new figures reveal that the state had a death rate of 11.9 per thousand population last year, instead of the 14.7 death rate announced previously.

Gas-fired heating is clean and care-free

Colder days are coming. So plan now to have convenient warmth and comfort.

With modern gas-fired heating equipment, your finger's touch controls the heat. You make no trips to the basement on cold mornings. You build no fires. Mother does not tend the furnace when father is away.

And gas is a clean fuel. All burnt gases go outdoors through the chimney without mingling with the pure, warm air in your home.

As a result, your furniture, upholstery, and curtains stay clean. The exterior of your home does not need repainting so often.

Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the Furnaces and Boilers for heating the entire home. There are also Floor Furnaces and Circulating Room Heaters for homes having no basement and Radiantfires for the fireplace. Just telephone and a competent heating specialist will call and gladly discuss the heating of your particular home.

completion of California's census and the new figures supplant those based upon statistics in 1920. In spite of the heavy migration of year to year of the state's population, during the last decade, California's general health conditions in California are generally good. Dr. Walter M. Chase, chief of the department said, "as is demonstrated by the new mortality rate statistics, in spite of the heavy migration of invalids to this state, California's death rate is lower than is the general death rate for many other states in the Union."

Business Worries Seen As Reason for Increase In Hospitals

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 25.
(UP)—California's hospitals for insane and feeble-minded showed a tendency toward decrease in population last month for the first time since the first of this year.

A sudden increase in number of commitments shortly after January 1 was blamed by the state department of institutions on the current business depression.

Although refusing to concede that the falling off in number of patients is a sign of returning prosperity, the department said it indicated the worst effects of the depression have been felt.

"Border line" cases of insanity and feeble mindedness respond quickly to adverse economic conditions, according to Earl E. Jensen, director of the department.

Whenever the business cycle starts downward it is followed shortly by an increased population in state hospitals.

"Apparently the low point of the depression was reached about two months ago," Jensen said, "judging from our hospital population trend."

Last month the net increase of patients in the six mental hospitals was but six, with a total of 14,912 in residence receiving care and treatment on August 1.

"The two homes for the feeble-minded on August 1 had a resident population of 2,699—a reduction of 16."

Despite the slackening off of population increase California still has a very definite problem in respect to facilities for care of the insane and feeble minded.

The only mental hospital having vacancies in any appreciable number is the Mendocino state hospital, which on the first of the month had 133 vacancies for women and 20 for men.

All other hospitals are enabled to retain only sufficient beds to accommodate the usual commitments, and in many instances, it is necessary to crowd in a few more beds to take care of new cases as they come in.

SHANGHAI 'GOES CHICAGO' WITH ARMORED TRUCKS

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11 (UP) —

Shanghai has "gone Chicago."

After centuries of transporting money around the streets in iron boxes by two coolies with a pole, bankers have become worried and as a result two armored payroll trucks have just made an appearance.

Both are owned by the Shanghai Commercial & Savings Bank, and it was stated that they were "designed after the pattern of machines used in Chicago and New York."
With steel plating protecting all occupants, including the driver.

HIGHBROW THIEVES
TOLEDO, O. (UP) — Toledo's thieves are going in for the finer things of life. Sheet music valued at $400 was stolen from a prominent orchestra conductor. The same day J. H. Davis, piano tuner, missed his automobile. It contained all his tuning instruments. The car was still among the missing.

"MURDER" NETS $329.10

DECATUR, Ill. (UP) — Fifteen men were arrested on charges of gambling here recently after police had raided an apartment following a report that a man had been murdered. The murder report proved a hoax but the raid resulted in replenishing the city treasury to the extent of $329.10 which represented the fines paid by the 15.

LEAVES HOSPITAL
COLUMBIA CITY, Ind. (UP) —
Provoked at having to sleep in a small, narrow hospital bed, Henry Nel, a retired merchant, slipped out of a hospital early one morning and returned to his hotel wearing only sleeping garments and slippers. He was placed in the hospital following a heart attack.

SANTA ROSA (UP)—The auto-stopping record is claimed by Mrs.
Roy Kunz, she saw a rattlesnake crawl under her cot in a camp at Flat ridge. She locked herself in the family sedan and stayed there 5 hours.
